August 2007
Av/Elul 5767
Vol. 6, Issue No. 7

Some of us still have a lot to learn about Judaism, in fact some of us are kind of beginners, and this column sometimes feels like “what I learned about Judaism this month” but so be it.

I recently learned again how good and solid our community is when we are in need. With the sadness and pain of my mother’s death in mid-May (at age 91 after a short illness), I was privileged to feel the support, sensitivity, and intelligence of the JCA membership. Hendrix (my daughter) and I returned from Long Island and were greeted by several nights’ dinner in our refrigerator and a forget-me-not in bloom on our front stoop. Then came cards. Flowers. Chocolates. Cakes. Cookies. A basket of fruit and cheese. For two nights, a living room full of JCA members who were unconditionally loving, accepting, supportive. And knowledgeable too. At mid-week and Shabbat services for the next couple of weeks, the mourner’s kaddish was slowed down at my request (sixty recitations later, I’m speedier), and the experience of saying it with others in mourning—and hearing those not in mourning chime in—has been undeniably powerful, emphasizing that we’re the same and different. So many have been “present” with us in exactly the capacity possible for them at this moment in time. Thank you.

The semi-annual meeting, June 10, was held in the Library because of the following Kosher-que and theatrical event, to a packed membership, and proceeded roughly as follows:

After a stirring d’var by Rabbi David Dunn Bauer about working cooperatively, treasurer Alan Peterfreund reported that 267 households have renewed thus far, about the same as this time last year; revenues are holding steady; normal expenses are up slightly. If nothing were to change, we would be operating with a deficit of about $30,000 for 2008. Suggestions from members included: increasing fundraising during the high holidays, e.g. fundraising pledges on seats; actively encouraging visitors to make contributions; continually re-assessing the Fair Share plan (under way); actively engaging local former members about why they resigned and what would inspire them to re-new; establishing an endowment (under way).

Andra Rose, co-chair of the Educational Programming Task Force, reported on cradle to grave education. The 2006 annual meeting was loud and clear that we need to study the educational needs of our community, especially our school-age children, identify the priorities, and figure out how to meet them, she said. She emphasized the opportunity for vitality and the importance of continuity. The task force, which has been meeting since last January, is committed to including local non-members as well as members, “secular” Jews as well as “observant” Jews in its deliberations, goals, and actions. Meanwhile, she said there will be a viable Adult Ed program by September, the task force will have a statement for December 2007 and a vision statement for June 2008. In

RETREAT FOR BOARD MEMBERS, CLUSTER COORDINATORS AND COMMITTEE CHAIRS

There will be a retreat on September 9, 2007 from 4:30-8:00 PM at the JCA for board members, cluster coordinators and committee chairs. The goal of the retreat will be to help us better coordinate, plan, and understand the budget process as it relates to committees and to work on committee continuity and succession. We hope to generally come up with a working system that can be passed on to committees year after year. Dinner will be served.

RABBI LIAISON COMMITTEE

The charge of the Rabbi Liaison Committee is:

“To provide an effective process that will expand and enhance both the functional and personal relationship between the Rabbi and the JCA community”

We encourage you to contact any member of the committee whenever you feel there is an issue that you would like them to consider with Rabbi Bauer.

addition, we are advertising for a new Family Educator; Chanukah will have a “green” perspective; the Teen Program is very successful, with its spark! (volunteer program), BBYO (teen-led), JCAT (JCA Teens), and Confirmation classes resuming for tenth to twelfth graders with greater emphasis on experiential learning and social action.

Suggestions from members included encouraging participants in all educational programs to become members; directing Camp Shemesh to increase teenage involvement; directing the religious school to encourage children to relate positively to Judaism.

Michael Burkhart, chair of the Strategic Planning Task Force, introduced the work so far updating the 1992 Strategic Plan. In response, JCA members formed small, animated (loud) discussion groups, and groups’ comments included: more emphasis on this as a Jewish community; more emphasis on financial solvency; renewed exploration of what it means to be Reconstructionist congregation; assessing whether alternative religious services increases membership; more emphasis on Tikkun Olam (note: the committee’s current focus is Fair Trade), political/social activism, and creating a more welcoming environment; prioritizing education and discussion about Israel today and its meaning for Jews throughout the world.

Other committee reports:

Eli Kwartler, co-chair for High Holidays, reported that services will be structured similarly to last year and asked members to volunteer.

Randall Furash-Stewart, co-chair of Fundraising, asked members to send him ideas that they are willing to lead. Members should ask themselves, “What is something I can do for the financial health of this community?”

Beth Eisenberg, head of Public Relations, needs a designer. Please e-mail her immediately!

Amy Mittelman, chair of Fun Raising, needs more members to carry out the many projects that would be wonderful. (Note: the Kosher-que after the meeting was a tremendous success, with the entire Loeb family cooking.)

Oran Kaufman, co-chair of Membership, said the committee is holding open house events, welcoming prospective and new members, and is working on policies such as membership status for divorced families. (Note: come to the Open House to welcome new and prospective members on August 26, ten to noon.)

Anita Page, co-chair of Music, Arts, and Culture, encouraged members to stay for the theater performance, Making Peace with Kaddafi, in the sanctuary. (Note: it was very well attended and received by over 100 people).

Gordon Freed asked if members would be willing to receive more than one JCA e-mail a week; the membership voted overwhelmingly YES. They did have one suggestion, however: that religious school announcements be put in a separate mailing marked “school” or, at the very least, appear after rather than before announcements geared to the general membership.

There’s more, but let’s stop. Some of the most important things right now are: contact Eli Kwartler to volunteer for the High Holidays; be ready to tell the Educational Programming Task Force about your specific visions for education at the JCA; contact Randall Furash-Stewart or Steve Woolf to volunteer for Fundraising and Amy Mittelman to volunteer for Fun Raising; generously donate to the JCA; pay your fair share of dues on time; enjoy the rest of the summer; remember it’s a month of mental preparation for the spiritual intensity of the High Holidays.

VISUAL ARTISTS WANTED

The newly constituted Visual Arts Committee invites JCA members to submit art work in any medium for display in our gallery space. (This is the hallway between the main entrance and the library.) We hope to have a beautiful and varied exhibit in place for the High Holidays. The art does not have to have a specifically Jewish theme but it should be appropriate for a space visited by families and young children.

It's a wonderful opportunity to get to know each other in a relaxed and friendly atmosphere. From June through September we will meet at Groff Park, weather permitting.

FOOT STOMPING MELODIES FOR WELCOMING SHABBAT

The next Carlebach-style service will be on August 17th

We have transliterated prayerbooks and buddies to help you.
The melodies are beautiful, the spirit/ruach is incredible.

NEW CHUMASHIM

The process of replacing our chumashim in the sanctuary continues.
Our only source of revenue for this is from your donations to the prayerbook fund.
Please consider aiding this effort.
Donations of any amount are gratefully accepted, however a minimum donation of $65.00 is required for a book dedication plate.

NEW CHUMASHIM MISSING

We have discovered that we are missing four copies of the new Etz Hayim chumash which were recently purchased for use in services.
These are the ones with the red covers.
Please check at home to see if you've borrowed one and have forgotten to return it. If it belongs to the JCA it will be stamped on the bottom edge and inside the front and/or back cover.
We still do not have very many of these books and need all of them each week.
Thank you for your cooperation.

EDUCATION REVISIONING TASK FORCE REPORT

This article is based on a presentation to the June Semi-annual Community Meeting by Andra Rose

A Task Force to plan for the future of education at JCA was born at the December 2006 Annual Meeting. The Board endorsed the idea that we need changes in all our educational offerings, using a very broad definition of education, so the Task Force is looking at the school, community education, adult education, and informal education.

Task force members are: Stacy Tobin and Andra Rose (co-chairs), Merle Feld, Ted Trobaugh, John Loeb, Rhonda Shapiro-Reiser, David Rabinovitz, Lisa Perl binder, Rabbi David Dunn Bauer, Jody Rosenbloom. We have already met with two Jewish educators from outside the JCA, collected parent feedback on the school, read reports on Jewish education, and discussed our common challenges with other congregations. We have learned that we are not alone; a nation-wide conversation about the role of congregations in Jewish education is gathering momentum.

In the fall we will be collecting feedback inside and outside the congregation, visit innovative programs in the New England area, and submit several grant applications for education funding. By the end of the year we will present a school staffing plan.

Meanwhile committees and staff are already responding to feedback that we need to diversify our education offerings; for example, the Rabbi will teach Lunch & Learns for Seniors, and Friday nights will include more potlucks and educational/cultural programs after the service. Community Education will focus on environmental healing this year, with storytelling for Sukkot and a community-wide Green Chanukah program. Religious School enhancements include Hebrew "boot camp" for the fall for parents and children in grades 4-6 to review their Hebrew; interested community members may also participate.

The shining star of our educational programs is our teen programming, which has become a model in the region. We are drawing 3 out of 4 of our own teens attracting teens from families who were previously affiliated here and some who were never affiliated anywhere. The Grinspoon Foundation is funding a much larger grant in recognition of the outstanding commitment and enthusiasm of our Teen Advisor, Rachel Goren.

Next year Confirmation class will include electives in the arts, cooking, modern Hebrew, public policy, etc, which will be open to all teens. Community members are invited to teach a one-time seminar or a 4-8 week session for teens.

Rachel Goren is an ideal example of something the Task Force is focusing on: our need to recruit and retain highly skilled educators as we grow educational programming at JCA. Rachel is a gem and to keep her, we are thinking creatively about structuring her position to make it possible for her to stay for many more years. A part of the Task Force's mission is to work with staff, committees, the Strategic planning committee, and the Board to expand opportunities for talented Jewish educators at the JCA.

ADULT READING GROUP

The first meeting of the new cycle for the JCA Adult Reading Group will take place on Wednesday, September 26, 2007, at 7:30 p.m. in the multipurpose room. The book for discussion is The Song of Names by Norman LeBrecht. It is in paperback. Each cycle for the Adult Reading Group goes from September to June ; four books are read during that time-about two months between each meeting. We focus on Jewish authors, alternating male and female, and the members decide at each meeting what the next book to be read and discussed will be. New group members are always welcome. Come to one meeting or all four! If you have any questions, please call Ken Talan at 253-2248.

spark HeartAction

Community Service Learning
Opportunity for all 8th-12th graders!

What is HeartAction?

HeartAction is an exploration of community service for teens as a meaningful expression of Jewish identity. HeartAction combines Jewish learning with ongoing service to the elderly. Teens put the Jewish values of bikur holim (visiting the sick) and hidur p'nei zaken (honoring the elderly), into action. They challenge their understanding of the elderly and deepen their connection with community. Relationships grow through monthly visits in conjunction with reflection sessions, text studies, journal activities and personal encounters. Teens will gain new perspectives on their places in the world, and what they can do to improve it.

Ok, sounds important, how do I get involved?

The JCA and spark have partnered to create a HeartAction right here in Amherst at the Center for Extended Care. If you are interested, you must make a minimum of a 5-month commitment of attending once a month both the volunteer session at the Center and the learning and reflection session. It is free to join, but your commitment is important. This opportunity is open to all 8th-12th grade students, regardless of affiliation, and teens can receive up to 20 hours of community service hours as a requirement for National Honors Society or any other community service requirement.

Part of being Jewish is the responsibility to make a difference. Tikun olam – repairing the world – starts with the world around us in our communities.

There will be a mandatory orientation session on Sunday, September 16th from 2-4:30pm at the JCA for all interested teens. Interested teens should contact the Teen Adviser, Rachael Goren, at 256-0160 x208 or rbgoren@gmail.com

WORLD JEWISH CONCERNS AND ACTION COMMITTEE NEWS BRIEF

The World Jewish Concerns and Action Committee submits articles each month with the intention of presenting varying viewpoints on the Israeli-Palestinian conflict. The viewpoints expressed are not intended to represent the opinions of the Committee or of the membership of the JCA.

*Below are the opening pages of an article by Steven Erlanger of the New York Times offering a detailed analysis of the forces of Hamas today in Gaza. The complete article may be found in the Sunday, July 15, 2007 edition of the New York Times Magazine Section.**

July 15, 2007

A Life of Unrest

By Steven Erlanger

Palestinians never used to do these things to one another. Putting bullets in the back of the heads of men on their knees. Shooting up hospitals. Killing patients. Knee-capping doctors. Executing clerics. Throwing handcuffed prisoners to their deaths from Gaza's highest (and most expensive) apartment buildings. There is a madness in Gaza now. Hamas — a religious political-military organization that dominated the last Palestinian elections — claimed it was fighting infidels, with a holy sanction to kill. Fatah — the largest group in the Palestine Liberation Organization — was nearly as brutal as Hamas and claimed it was fighting the Nazis. Poor young men from the squalid, stinking refugee camps of Gaza, their heads filled with religious slogans and revolutionary cant, took off their knitted black masks to pose in front of the gilded bathrooms of the once-powerful and rich men of Fatah. Then they stole the sinks, toilets, tiles and pipes, leaving the wiring and the metal scraps for the ordinary, unarmed poor.

Gaza today is so far from the hopes of people like James Wolfensohn — the former World Bank president who tried to coordinate economic redevelopment in the 140-square-mile territory between Israel and Egypt after the Israelis withdrew nearly two years ago — as to seem like the other side of the earth. Rather than a model for a future Palestinian state, Gaza looks like Somalia: broken and ravenous. The civil war that Palestinians insisted could never happen just has, a civil war abetted by Israel and the United States in the name of antiterrorism and stability — another policy that has failed, at least here, where a burning smell still fills the nostrils and where a masked Hamas gunman with an AK-47 recently sat at the abandoned desk of the Palestinian president, Mahmoud Abbas, lifted up the phone and said: "Hello, Condoleezza Rice? You have me to deal with now." But the military victory of Hamas may also bring a welcome measure of quiet and security to the 1.5 million people of Gaza, nearly 70 percent of them refugees, who have been living a nightmare of criminal gangs, street-corner vendettas, clan warfare, absent police, corrupt officials, religious incitement and unremitting poverty.

Khaled Abu Hilal, a thin, grizzled chain-smoker who sucks in tobacco smoke the way an emphysema patient sucks in oxygen, is at the center of the revolution. He is a hated figure among many in the secular, nationalist Fatah; they think he is a heretic who helped set off the Gaza implosion. But his journey is Gaza's journey, from Fatah fighter and Israeli prisoner to disgusted ex-Fatah man, now associated with Hamas. His anger with Mahmoud Abbas — Yasir Arafat's successor as chairman of the P.L.O. and now president of the Palestinian Authority — and with what he considers the endless, futile and demeaning effort of a corrupt Fatah to please the Israelis, is shared among an increasing number of Palestinians.

Standing early last month amid the Israeli-bombed ruins of the buildings of the Executive Force, which he helped Hamas build as a parallel police and protection force, Hilal, now 39, was quietly triumphant. He had been serving as a close aide to, and spokesman for, the tough Hamas interior minister, Said Siam, who left office in opposition to the national-unity government with Fatah. Both he and Siam were central to the campaign by the Executive Force and by Hamas's military wing, the Qasam Brigades, that pulled Fatah down in six days in early June. "I feel proud, no question," he said as aides urgently shoved cellphones into his hand. "I feel I did my national duty, and that makes me very comfortable, psychologically speaking." Two weeks later, at a packed and sweaty rally in Gaza City, Hilal announced that he would lead a new Fatah movement and military force in Gaza, allied with Hamas, called Fatah al-Yasir/Higher Military Command, named after Yasir Arafat.

"This is pure Fatah, Fatah before Oslo," Hilal shouted hoarsely, referring to the 1993 peace accords with Israel that created the Palestinian Authority. Hilal sees Oslo as a betrayal of the Palestinian struggle for real statehood, and he called his new movement "a true Palestinian national liberation movement." Surrounded by large, bearded gunmen in black uniforms, Hilal wore a loose, untucked shirt and looked as tiny as Arafat. "The good and honorable people of the Fatah movement have rejected the collaborators!" he shouted. At the end, he was mobbed by hundreds of young men, both acolytes and job seekers.

Whether or not he succeeds with the new movement, Hilal (if he lives) presents the first major internal challenge to the Fatah establishment, represented by Abbas, calling Fatah back to its roots as a resistance movement of revolutionary fighters. Establishment Fatah has excommunicated Hilal, and some would surely like to see him dead. But if Palestine is now divided between the West Bank and Gaza, Fatah in Gaza is divided, too.

In a conversation after the Hamas victory, Hilal, speaking through an interpreter, said he felt “bitterness about the spilling of Palestinian blood,” but the spilling of blood for the cause of Palestinian independence and dignity, as he sees it, is an inevitable, even necessary sacrifice. At least 160 Palestinians, most of them Fatah, died in that week of war last month, including 45 civilians, and some 800 were wounded, according to the Mezan Center for Human Rights in Gaza. Another 50 were killed in an earlier round of fighting, in May. No matter what happens now, Hilal said, “it will not be worse than the previous period of chaos, nothing worse can come. And maybe now we have the chance to move very seriously to encourage the local economy, small business, agriculture. The most important thing is that we have got rid of the mafia that exists in the security apparatuses and that paralyzed our daily life.”

By “mafia” he means Fatah — or at least the leadership of Fatah that he believes betrayed its duty to its own people. For Hilal, the recent battle was for the purity of Fatah, which he maintains he represents against what he calls “the polluted stream” of Fatah, “the diverted ones,” who betrayed Palestinian aspirations for independence at Oslo and became entranced by Israeli and American approval and gold. The major mistake of Arafat and Fatah was to accept the Oslo accords, Hilal says, and those who opposed the accords then — Hamas and Islamic Jihad — were correct. “I am pro-peace and anti-Oslo,” Hilal told me. “Oslo is a project for treason, not for peace.”

TOGETHER WE CAN MAKE A DIFFERENCE: JRF's SYNAGOGUE GREENING INITIATIVE

With the enthusiasm around JRF's Omer Learning Initiative, as well as the solid response of JRF congregations in the Climate Change Initiative, JRF is planning to deepen its greening work with member communities next year.

Our hope is to motivate and educate our congregations in sustainable practices, with the goal of reaching 100 percent participation in the years ahead.

In response to calls from professional and lay leaders seeking help in setting up a greening committee or identifying sustainability projects in their own communities, JRF hosted a North American Synagogue Greening Conference Call. More than 60 people from 40 JRF congregations participated!

The call included an overview of our movement's work in this area from Rabbi Shawn Zevit, JRF's Director of Outreach and Tikkun Olam; Rabbi Fred Dobb of Adat Shalom synagogue in Bethesda, MD, and a COEJL board member; and RRC rabbinical student Derek Rosenbaum, JRF Tikkun Olam Intern 2006-'07.

Topics and the speakers who addressed them on the call, included:

Greening Synagogue practices with Julie Dorfman of the Jewish Reconstructionist Congregation (JRC) in Evanston, IL. JRC is currently undergoing a full reconstruction of its building according to green architecture principles, including obtaining LEED certification (Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design) from the U.S. Green Building Council Everyday sustainability across the synagogue system with Cantor Eric Schulmiller of the Reconstructionist Synagogue of the North Shore (RSNS) in Plandome, NY, the first "carbon-neutral" synagogue.

Eco-Kashrut and Greening Synagogue practices with Rabbi Yitz Husbands-Hankin of Temple Beth Israel, Eugene, OR

Information on the Sustainable Synagogue Initiative can be found on the JRF website's environment pages at www4.jrf.org/climate.
